

Join the Advocacy Certificate for Human Genetics and Genomics Trainees (ACGT) Program!

This competitive, year-long program is designed for trainees who are interested in pursuing a research or clinical career but who would like to explore policy and what it means to be an advocate for human genetics and genomics research.

ACGT activities include:

- Participating in a Hill Day and engaging with Congressional staff.
- Attending training workshops on key federal budget and policy issues.
- Contributing to the development of ASHG's advocacy materials in support of NIH funding.
- Completing an individual policy project or activity on a specific policy topic.

APPLICATIONS WILL OPEN IN NOVEMBER.

Once posted, submit your application at <https://www.ashg.org/advocacy> by January 6, 2023.

For more information, please contact policy@ashg.org.

